

The "swimming collar," a clever new device claimed to teach one how to swim in ten minutes—a high, watertight celluloid collar which holds the head in a natural position and keeps the water away from the mouth and nose.
International
 Left—Admiral Van Reuter (X), in command of the German fleet scuttled at Scapa Flow, is greeted on his return to Bremen with his men by Admiral von Trotha (XX), head of the German navy. And it's easy to tell by their expressions just how they feel about the whole disgraceful affair.
Paul Thompson

Leading the life of Riley, we'll say, are these U. S. Navy boys. A government launch un-der way on a tour in that land of sunshine and palms. Still another thought of our Atlantic fleet.

Clearing nine barrels in a row on skates was one of the sensational stunts negotiated by Earl Palmer during the recent carnival of winter sports up at the Lake Placid Club in the Adirondacks. Where a stubbed toe means disaster.
Levick

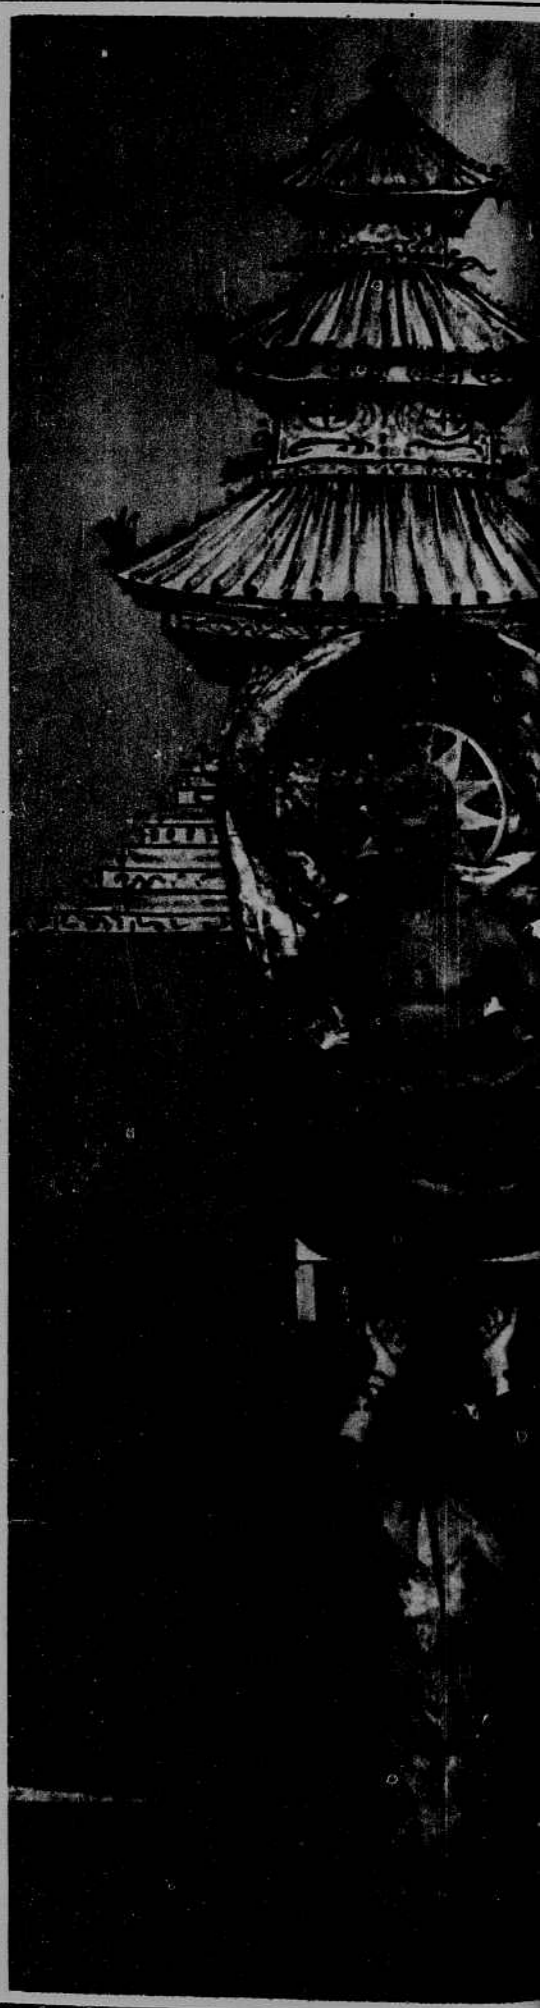

Left—African women aren't the only ones reputed to be "brainless head workers." In Boston recently when a coal barge reached her pier many resorted to almost any means to get the black diamonds to their homes. And this woman just walked away with nearly a hundred pounds in a sack atop her head.
Underwood

Left—An impressive photograph of the funeral of Admiral Robert E. Peary, whose body was laid to rest in Arlington with full military honors last Monday. The casket is draped with the Stars and Stripes, which he raised at the North Pole.
International

A Cornell "beauty" chorus at that university's Crocus Festival recently given at the Commodore for the benefit of the Cornell Athletic Fund. From left to right—Messrs. Coleman, Evan, Dean, Landers, Pryor, Kerby, Mayer, Maxson and Harrison.
International

A scene from the third annual Chu Chin Chai Friday night. The fantastic tableau picture Bontel at the Court of Heaven. Harold Rite Forrest is the Pillow Bearer. The beauty revel was won by Lilyan Tashman.

Left—An intimate picture of Mrs. Vincent Astor washing dishes at the dedication of the new Victory Army and Navy Clubhouse at 9 State Street. The popular society matron presented the new clubhouse to Uncle Sam's boys on behalf of the Y. M. C. A.
Underwood